

President's Message –Peter Fishley

Meeting the Probus Family

This month, I want to talk to you about Probus beyond Templestowe because your club is taking steps to widen its horizons – to look beyond its own boundaries.

As you know, the club subscribes to Probus News, the official quarterly publication of Probus in Australia and New Zealand, published by Probus—South Pacific, the organisation to which the clubs of the region answer. The magazine has some good articles in it but has a definite NSW bias in its news, stories and advertising. Because of this, we have progressively reduced the number of copies available to members so that we now take only 15 copies each time.

To fill the gap created by this retraction, your Committee has decided to sign on for membership of the Probus Association of Victoria. This organisation provides us with a number of advantages because of its regional nature. It speaks and acts on behalf of Victorian Probians, runs seminars, provides advice, and reports on the activities of Victorian Probus clubs through its quarterly magazine, The Victorian Probian. Through the advertising carried by the magazine, we get much more information about Victorian businesses that cater for Probian needs. Some time soon you will be able to pick up your copy when attending a club meeting. Let us know what you think of it when you get your copy: we think you will find its contents much more relevant to your needs.

On our August outing to Chateau Tahbilk, and on other occasions, we have been joined by fellow Probians from other clubs. We hope to include more when we can because this healthy development puts us in touch with some of our near neighbours.

At a personal level, I am happy to inform you that our founding body, the Rotary Club of Manningham, invited the presidents and partners of the eight Probus clubs it has set up, to be its guests at Eastern Golf Club for its weekly dinner meeting on Monday, 4 September. Wendy and I attended on your behalf. One spin-off from meeting the other presidents is that the club has since received an invitation to send representatives to an upcoming meeting of one of those eight clubs.

On Friday, 27 October your Vice President and I represented you at the twice-yearly meeting of the Probus Clubs of Manningham. At this meeting, held in the Council Chambers of the City of Manningham, representatives of 20 local Probus clubs exchanged information about the way each club is operating and swapped ideas for outings, speakers and tours. And, of course, Helen and I took the opportunity to build on the friendships and acquaintances made when we attended the April meeting of this group.

So all in all, much has been happening to enable our club to look and go further afield, getting recognition and gaining strength from the initiatives it has taken and the invitations it has received. The club is in good shape and travelling well. Thank you for the way you have joined in and supported all the good things we do. Peter Fishley

Have You Bought Your Books Yet?

Beryl Jones, a volunteer with The Smith Family, will attend our Club Meeting on Monday, 13 November to receive the formal hand-over of the books you have bought to help swell the Christmas stockings of under privileged children between the ages of four and 12. This is part of The Smith Family's program Learning for Life. The Smith Family has given it this name in the belief that it is learning that brings the best out of a young person and sets them up for life. Your gifts of books are eagerly awaited for this purpose. However, they must be received by the November Club Meeting.

Christmas is Coming

If you bought Rotary whiskey Christmas cakes or whiskey plum puddings from Ken Murray last year, you will be lining up to purchase them from him again this year when he sets up his stall in the hall foyer the morning of our Club Meeting (Monday, 13 November).

These excellent products come in 800 gram tins – all you have to do is to heat the pudding and eat the cake. Of course, you could have your cake and heat it as well ... but that might be going too far. Thirteen dollars will buy you either product. What ever you buy, you will be happy to know that the profit will be shared by two local charities, Doncare and LinC (Love in the Name of Christ). Ken will ply his wares from 9.00 till the meeting starts at 9.45.

Secretary's News - Ian Gault

At the Committee Meeting held on Monday, 9 October:

Last Month - Tramboat ' Elaine's fun boat

Again 39 brave Probian mariners took to the Tramboat. this time to explore the upper reaches of our mighty river "The Yarra ". So imagine the concern when we headed of in the other direction. Soon all was revealed when we arrived at the Science Works wharf and took on board two attractive polystyrene boxes overflowing with fish and chips. No scurvy on this trip.- Now pointing in the right direction, we set of passing Jeff's Shed, The Casino, with jets of flame announcing our presence and all the Southgate complex, while navigating the low bridges and being escorted by rowers, Eights, Quads and Pairs all dashing around us like mosquitoes. All this time the bar had done a steady trade, so, by the time we reached the approach to Heron Island and the meal had been consumed it was the cue to let off a bit of steam, lead by ABBA and one of our future leaders. Truly a great and enjoyable evening and we are in the starting blocks for another repeat performance. John Mugridge

Our "Aussie" Christmas Luncheon 11 December

Come along and join in the fun and frivolity to celebrate another successful year of our Probus Club. Our theme this year is "An Aussie Christmas". It would be great if you could come dressed for the occasion (Christmas hat, t-shirt, gum leaf etc). We have many helpers already working to make the day special, however we do need more help, so you may get a call. The starting time is 10am, for our morning fellowship, followed by our club meeting, and then the celebration begins. All you need to bring is a big smile, your own drinks and glasses everything else is provide. Good fun, good food, great entertainment and the best company you will every come across from your fellow Probian. See you all on the 11 December.

Alan and Judy Baker

We need to finalize the numbers for the caterers, so we would ask you to be sure and make your payment of $10.00 for your lunch to Lyn & Ron McBain, at the November meeting. This will be another day to remember!!

Christmas Delights at the Johnston Collection

A group of twelve members were entranced, delighted and amazed by the Johnston Collection, which they visited on Thursday, 2 November. Every room in the house displayed the most exquisite items of embroidery, lace work, bead work and knitted foods, all celebrating the Christmas season. The displays were the creations of the embroiderers, Craft Guild members, china painters and lace makers of Ballarat. I recommend this wonderful show to anyone who appreciates the decorative arts. It's a real eye-opener and a joy! Wendy – 98483749.

Fellowship Tea Roster -Alan & Judy Baker.

The tea roster does not obligate anyone; it is just a guide to help spread the load. Supplies are arranged. You need to be at the hall at around 9.30am to set up and help serve at fellowship then clean up afterwards, please bring two tea towels to dry the dishes. There is an A4 sheet headed "Tea Roster Duties" in the cupboard under the sink, explaining what has to be done. If you are physically unable to carry out the roster duties, please let us know and we will take your name off the list. If you are unable to attend on your rostered day, please phone Alan and Judy on 98505641

Our Web Site

We have just set up our Probus South Pacific web site.

It only has a front page at the moment but we will be transferring information about our club relevant to non members. I welcome suggestions as to how we can best use this site without causing concern for members about privacy of information, as this site is open to the general public.

The web site is at:

http://www.probus.com.au/probus_clubs/templestowe_valley

We also now have our own email address which at present autoforwards mail to my email as web manager. This link however can easily be changed in the future if necessary.

Our email address is:

templestowevalley@probus.com.au

You need not change anything to access the web site as I have placed a link on our club site. There is also a link back to the club site (via password) from the Probus South Pacific site. Please continue to use my email address if you don't wish to change you set up.

Our Postal Address is PO Box 518 Bulleen 3105

Please use this address for all other club correspondence. Our Secretary will clear the PO Box regularly

A Story from Gallipoli
(From The Herald-Sun 25/4/2001)

A poignant account of the horror of Gallipoli was discovered in 2001 after more than 85 years.

Private Reg Polkinghorne, 19, had the dreadful task of writing to his mother about the death of his brother, Clifford, 23, who was killed during the Gallipoli landing.

The two Ballarat boys enlisted in the army after the nation called for volunteers. They were among thousands of Australians involved in the landing on April 25, 1915.

Reg's letter, unseen by his surviving relatives until 2001, gives a moving account of the bravery shown by the Anzacs on that fateful day. Reading the letter for the first time the brothers' 102-year-old sister, Dulcie Turnbull, remembers the day they went to war.

"Reg joined up and Cliff said if Reg went, he would ... so he joined up too," Mrs Turnbull recalled from her Castlemaine nursing home. "Our mother was very worried."

The pair became members of the 8th Battalion. They were sent to Egypt for training before boarding a ship bound for Gallipoli. "They were very close," Mrs Turnbull said.

Off Gibraltar, May 7, 1915.

Dear Mother,

It is a very hard letter to write although I know you will expect it. You will by now have the list of the killed and wounded.

Clifford died a glorious death, a hero in the very front line of battle. Thousands of others fell that same day (April 25th). Although it was full of glory for us who were fighting, it meant a lot of suffering to all of you at home. It was a terrible fight, but not one of us shirked it at all.

Indeed we were like old soldiers, the way we took the bloodshed around us. Cliff and I were together all the time after he arrived in Egypt and on the boat going to the Dardanelles. After we landed we were together for about 10 minutes, and then we got separated. He was picked to go to the right and I to the left of our company. We advanced and came under heavy fire at once. That was about 9 o'clock in the morning of the first day. After that I never had time to look or think until after dark, when we tried to re-form our company. But only 50 returned, the other 200 being either killed, wounded or missing. Before morning, however, 26 more turned up, making only 76 out of our company of over 250. It was then that the boys told me that Cliff was gone. The fire of the Turks was so terrific that we could not get up to get Cliff until Tuesday morning.

The boys did all they could for him. We buried him by himself in a grave on the hillside, just where the fiercest of the fighting had been.

Captain Coulter was very good and gave him a decent burial. The captain read the service, and all the boys who could be spared from the trenches came to pay their last respects to an honoured comrade. It was terribly sudden, but still I am sure that Cliff was prepared for it. Capt Coulter asked me about you, and asked me to write as soon as possible. He had a brother killed beside him in South Africa. Cliff's death was just the kind of death that a soldier wishes for. It is terrible to see those badly wounded lying around you when you cannot do anything for them.

That Sunday, April 25th, was the hottest battle ever fought. The "heads" thought we would retreat, in fact a retreat was ordered, but our General said he knew we would never retreat while there was a man alive, so we held on and won.

The next three days and nights were just the same, only we had dug trenches, and so held the position. We had no sleep and only a little bully and biscuit to eat for the whole time. The Turks got at the back of us dressed in our uniforms, which they had stolen from the Australians who were killed. One of them got me in the back on Wednesday morning. It knocked me over. The bullet went in just half an inch from the spine, just missed my lung and stopped up under the shoulder bone. When they took it out it gave a ping as it came from under the bone.

Colonel Gartside was in the trench. He had me sent straight away to the AMC. They took the bullet out and I was sent on to the hospital ship and am now on my way to England.

I know you will be grieving about Cliff, but do not worry. He died with others and all their memories will be honoured for centuries to come. We were against great odds that day. The Turks were 10 to 1 against us. They had artillery, but we held our own and I think we beat them.

I am recovering now, but I have nothing left, not even my uniform, but I will get some in England.

With love, Reg

Footnote:

Reg and Cliff were my late mother Ida Polkinghorne's brothers. She was 7 years old when they left home for their great adventure in April 1914. Reg was 19 and Cliff 23.

Clifford Stanley George Polkinghorne, was well known in the Appin and Meering West district of Northern Victoria and was headteacher of the local state school.

Reginald Clyde Polkinghorne survived his injury, married, an English lady, May Marshallsay, and returned home with her, settled on a Soldier Settlement farm in the Swan Hill district as a very successful grape farmer. He raised a family of four with his eldest, a son named after Cliff.

Reg lived to the age of 79.

My Aunt Dulcie died at 104 years old in April 2003.

Cliff's remains were shifted to a War Graves Commission site on Shell Green at Gallipoli in the 1920's and buried with his comrades. I visited him there in 2003 and saluted him with a tear in my eye.
